Fashion icon Karl Lagerfeld thinks David Beckham has been an "interim player" in the fashion world and urged him to rise up to the role of "crown prince" of style. The fashion world is currently in the midst of being gripped by a fashion moment as the world's most famous fashion icon Karl Lagerfeld has been a major booster for David Beckham. Lagerfeld has said that he thinks he's the best footballer in the world, and that he's the best example of a "uniformed player" who sets a fashion statement. "The uniform is also important in football. Beckham is an interim player. He has become a legend, but his moment is up," Karl Lagerfeld told The Sun. Getty Images As England's sporting icon, David Beckham has long been a fashion player. The fashion icon praised the way he has been wearing his now-signature American-inspired hairstyle that the photographer Anwar Hussein immortalized in the "Wembley effect" photo taken by Anwar at the 2013 FA Cup final. "He is easy to talk to, he's a great sport. He's done very well. He's the best player. As a footballer, he's the best I've seen in the world. He is a very important player," said Lagerfeld. As the better player, Beckham's place at the fashion table is safe. He's been on the front lines of proving that a fashionable man doesn't need to wear a $40,000 designer suit and leave us wondering how he accomplished that. His tracksuit tops and stylish sportswear moves are making fashion history. "The uniform of the emulated players was always football players' tracksuits and it still is. The work of Beckham is very important," said Lagerfeld. So far, Beckham has proven that a plain and simple basketball outfit can be a fashion statement as well. "From the beginning I would say a lot of things have happened: Beckham's jersey, the number 10 shirt in the World Cup, the World Cup in Argentina," Lagerfeld told the Daily Mail. "We have to remember that he is a fashion player and you have to make people interested in what you are doing. You can do a lot of fashion things with football. You can dress up a football player." The only problem

For accurate results, use the Clone Stamp tool only on flat areas of an image that remain relatively unchanged over the years. To select a block of pixels to copy, drag the cursor over the area that you want to select. The pixels to be copied are shown in a rectangular marquee around the cursor. If you drag over the edge of an object, the entire object will be selected. If you drag on a blemish, it will be removed from the image. If you apply the Clone Stamp tool to an object and the Paint Bucket is open, the pixels will copy to the selected area, like it's a temporary brush. If the Paint Bucket is closed when you use the Clone Stamp, the selected pixels will be copied to the canvas with a brush the size of the selected area. The Clone Stamp tool can also be used with a Layer Mask. Use the Clone Stamp tool to copy pixels to the current layer. It will work even if the Layer Mask is not active. Use the Layer Mask to change the copied pixels. If you have a few layers with Layer Masks, you can use the Layer Mask and the Clone Stamp tool to copy pixels from one layer to the other.
