MORE (D-Calif.) ripped President Trump's decision to declare a national emergency to fund his U.S.-Mexico border wall by again arguing the declaration was politically motivated. "Without due consideration and in violation of the Constitution, the president declared a national emergency in order to spend billions of taxpayer dollars on building his border wall, which the president himself admits is unpopular and unneeded," Pelosi said in a floor speech.

emergency declaration be so tested in the courts. Let's see. We're not afraid of a test," she added. Pelosi slammed Trump's move in a nearly 9-minute-long speech Thursday. She said the president's declaration would not just "disrupt the lives of innocent people and the economy of our nation" but would also bring to mind one of "the darkest moments in our history." "Today's action is just the latest in a long series of steps taken to try to privatize and divert government funds away from the needs of the American people to benefit the president's bottom line," she said. She noted Trump's announcement at the Oval Office came just days after the House passed a continuing resolution (CR) to keep the federal government funded. "And it will be recalled as the time when President Trump declared a national emergency in order to try to steal billions of dollars from military construction accounts to pay for his vanity project," Pelosi said. "He's also diverting desperately needed funds to build his southern border wall
