Key Features New Dynamic AI - The AI will adapt to how the players are playing the game. If a player is working their way into the box, AI will adapt and move the players to ensure space is available. If players are closed off in a pocket, the AI will work to exploit that space. Player Trajectories – Players don't have the option to stand still or run through a ball anymore. Their runs and moves are now more natural and realistic. This will ensure ball-in-play action is enhanced and better represented in game. Passing: Players will attempt to change the angle of their pass without interrupting the ball. As a result, passing will feel more natural and flexible. Forward Pass: The ball can now be directly passed from one direction to another. All players will attempt to change the angle of their pass without interrupting the ball. As a result, passing will feel more natural and flexible. Directed Player Interference: Players will now attempt to advance and retain possession by using a variety of body direction techniques. Quick Attack: Players will always make a go-forward decision as soon as they receive the ball into their feet. Players will use a combination of lunges, shoulder fakes and various types of off-the-ball runs. Retaining possession: Players will now attempt to recover possession after winning the ball through one of the following techniques: Direct pass, sliding tackle, dribble, scoop and bounce pass, off-the-ball run, juke and feint. Goalkeeping: The goalkeeper will now attempt to react naturally to shots and make interceptions and clearances. Players will also attempt to win aerial duels, but only when they have space. Blocking: Players will make more directional efforts when blocking shots and dealing with certain situations.
